

STAR- FIRE BY ANAYIA SOPHIA

The Starfire is the menstrual blood of the Goddess. This term is first used in a series of ancient Sumerian tablets, describing a ‘moon’ elixir that flows from the great Queen/Goddess of an extra-terrestrial race, known as the Annunaki. The Star Fire was filled with components (DNA and a particular gene) that opened (and later kept open) the Pineal and Pituitary glands, granting clear wisdom and insight. It was ritualistically used in ancient (and modern) times by the early mystery schools, Priestly Elite, Kings and the male offspring of the Annunaki.

Mary Magdalene. Was she a descendant of this genetic line?

It is important to note that only males partook of this Elixir. Queens, Priestesses and the mothers of Annunaki offspring did not need this elixir for its spiritual properties, because they were ‘made’ of it.

After some time, the Star Fire was created here, on earth by ingesting the menstrual blood of virgin priestesses, who were born and bred for this single purpose. These priestesses, known as the scarlet women, were said to be the women who contained the voice. They were producing and speaking the wisdom of tomorrow. They produced the “Star Fire”, in their womb, and during their moon cycle, they would utter the word. The utterer, then became the uterus.

We also have to realise it is not the blood itself that produces the effect, it is what the blood carries, and that is a genetic line that moved from generation to generation in the female line, from Mother to Daughter. That’s why the “Scarlet Women” did not need to ingest the Star Fire — they were made of it. This Kingly quality, to the ability to rule, came from their Mother. This Priestly quality, the ability to commune with the All, came from their Mother.

These “Scarlet Women” led a pure and clean life within Temple walls, maintaining the quality and potency of their Star Fire for the Royal bloodline, who had the duty of guiding humanity in the good direction and maintaining a balance here on Earth, and our entire solar system. These men, in union with their female Star Fire counterparts, were the Kings and Queens of Sumeria, later the male and female Pharaohs of Egypt and then the ancient Israelites. It was here in this time, that two things happened of significant importance. Number One, the idea of a single male god and rule kicked in and Number Two, it became forbidden to partake of anything that contained blood.

So the ritual was gone.

In its place was a substance called White Powder Gold, Manna and the Bread from Heaven, also known today as Ormus.
